HELLO EVERYONE!

I am the founder of 4Nurs, Joel Aldasoro

As of June 2022 I am now a graduate RN student from Imperial Valley College and a tutor in the areas of ESL, English, Math, Physiology, and Microbiology.

I used many resources available; however, none helped me. That is why after I studied for the TEAS in my own way, I decided to make a course to help future nursing students to pass their TEAS with the score they want. We will be going over key concepts of each of the section in order for you to tackle any problem they might give you in the exam.

What you will learn

You can learn at your own pace and review whatever material you feel needs more work.

You have control over what you want to work on first; however, I would recommend to first start with the study tips section.

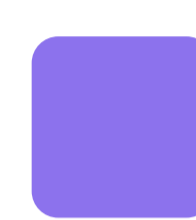

GOOD LUCK!

Reading

In this section we will be going over passages, identifying the main idea, supporting detail, purpose of the passage, types of passages, facts vs opinions, follow set of directions, and much more.

Math

In this section we will be going over key concepts like division, multiplication, percentages, fractions, inequalities, word problems, basic geometry, proportions, and other concepts.

Science

In this section we will be going over all 11 systems of the body plus some genetic information that can be covered on the TEAS exam. There will be extra material available if you want to go deeper, but I will only focus on key concepts.

Anatomy

In this section I will be providing you with useful content that helped me get through my Anatomy section. Get the general idea of what the Anatomy is and what is its purpose. This specific content helped me a lot for the TEAS.

Study tips

In this section I will be going over my study "secrets" I used during my college years in order to get high grades in all my classes.

Exam tips

In this section I will be going over quick tips I used on the exam that allowed me to do focus on my exam without any distractions.
